Shock absorbers

Sachs branded shock absorbers
e.g. for a Golf IV

€ 00,00

TIP FROM AN EXPERT

Mr Anybody from the Bosch Car Service Anybody & Son in Any Town says:

Shock absorbers are exposed to dirt, corrosion and wet conditions. The material is fatigued after 60,000 to 80,000 km and should be replaced. If the damping effect is reduced by 50%, the rear wheels lose contact with a bumpy or wet road considerably more quickly and the rear end swerves out of line.

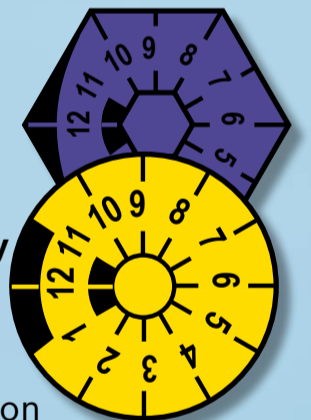

We recommend that you have a shock absorber check carried out at the Bosch Car Service to guarantee safe driving.

General inspection and exhaust emission test

Tips & Tricks

What to look for when buying a used car

Buying a used car is not just a matter of trust. Take a close look at the vehicle before you decide.

- ▶ Visual check of the body and underbody for rust, signs of damage, condition of the paintwork and uneven gap widths. Note the condition of the brakes, tyres, attachments.
- ▶ Look under the car in the area of the engine and transmission: oil drops on the underside of the units or on the ground could mean frequent high repair costs.
- ▶ Ask for proof of repair and maintenance. Compare the odometer reading in the service booklet with the speedometer.
- ▶ In the engine compartment: check the oil level, brake fluid and cooling water level. If the fill levels are too low, there could be a defect. Foam on the underside of the oil filler cap could be an indication of a defect. Has maintenance been neglected? If in doubt - workshop diagnosis.
- ▶ Do you want to complete security when buying a used car? A garage organisation such as the Bosch Car Service will be pleased to offer you further assistance.
